SATURDAY, JANUARY 7, 1911.

To revamp an old line: "Everybody works but the Senate; it runs home each Friday."

The last word has been said; President Taft has pronounced in favor of the croquet mallet for a golf putter. Therefore, let the golf war cease.

Less aliens and more citizens is a good cry for this vicinity, for the more citizens and the less aliens the greater interest will there be in civic matters.

As the youngest governor New Hampshire ever had, Robert P. Bass is in a position to demonstrate what an error in thought New Hampshire has had for these many years.

Thirty more millions went up in smoke on the North American continent in 1910 than in 1909. If we could concentrate our fires on the Fourth of July, what a celebration it would make!

Foss has been governor for two days, and Massachusetts still survives. Many Boston people woke up this morning with the glint from the State House dome in their eyes, surprised enough that the old commonwealth was still there.

There is a contest on for the position of postmaster in Hardwick, and one of the candidates announces in case of his success he will "try to conduct the office to the satisfaction of the public." We haven't got the platform of the other candidates on this point, but should presume there might be a similarity. A post office is not, ordinarily, conducted to satisfy the postmaster, although now and then one may think so.

Representative Burbank of Cabot can find several newspapers in Vermont which do not demand and do not receive anything from candidates who wish to "square themselves" with the press in order to get office. In fact, he would find that nearly all the newspapers of Vermont refuse to be a party to any such an understanding and that their support is given solely through analysis of the candidate's character and his qualifications for the position.

It is said that the legislature has spent $10,000 of the state's time already in the whimsical debate over when the members shall quit work at the end of the week and when they shall start work at the opening of the following week. That statement of the cost may

Our hobby is to give the youngsters clothing they can live in, run, play, work and scrap in—clothes that give honest wear for the money; that make the boy look his best—this means it will stimulate him to act his best.

15 Suits, heavy weight, sizes 9 to 17, with straight pants, $2.50 a suit, the coat alone is worth more.

18 Plain Color, Velvet Collar Overcoats, sizes 8 to 14, $4.50 each. These are $8 and $10 Coats.

3 dozen Boys' All-wool Knickerbocker Pants, heavy weight, 75c pair.

be somewhat extravagant; but it is certain that many valuable hours have been simply thrown away in a wrangle over the matter, yesterday included. In view of this fact, it might be well at the opening of each biennial session to establish a fixed rule for guidance throughout the entire assembly.

A rare and happy blending of seriousness, humor, wit and wisdom will be found in the lecture by Mr. Norcross at the First Baptist church, January 11. Hear him. "Things That Have Made Me Smile."

About one out of three is as many of the invitations to lecture as Mr. Norcross is able to accept. The men's class of the First Baptist church are of the fortunate "one in three," and present to Barre another high class entertainment, January 11.

The large and satisfied attendance at our previous entertainments shows the confidence the people of Barre have in the men's class of the First Baptist church, that only first-class entertainments are presented by them. This confidence is appreciated. We believe "Things That Have Made Me Smile," by Mr. Norcross, January 11, will be up to the mark.
